The Association of Schools of Public Health in the European Region (ASPHER) is the key independent European organisation dedicated to strengthening the role of public health by improving education and training of public health professionals for both practice and research. The main functions of the Association are to support the professionalisation of the public health workforce in Europe, whilst respecting the diversity of national and regional contexts in which each school of public health operates, and thus: to sustain capacity building in public health, so that it balances with national and European population health challenges and threats and is supported by best standards of public health education and training, scientific research, and practice.

The World Federation of Public Health Associations (WFPHA) is an international, nongovernmental organisation composed of about 130 multidisciplinary national public health associations and other organisations involved in public health, and representing over 5 million public health professionals worldwide. It is the only worldwide professional society representing and serving the broad field of public health. WFPHA’s mission is to promote and protect global public health. It does this by supporting the establishment and organisational development of public health associations through facilitating and supporting the exchange of information, knowledge and the transfer of skills and resources, and through promoting and undertaking advocacy for public policies, programmes and practices that will result in a healthy and productive world.

The Italian Society of Hygiene, Preventive Medicine and Public Health (SItI), with its more than 3000 members, is an organisation dedicated to the promotion and protection of collective human health and wellbeing. The President is the official representative of the Society. The mission of the Society is to achieve advances in the fields of epidemiology, public health, community health, health services organisation, management and health economics, to encourage the evolution and development of cultural and professional activities of prevention and the role and qualifications of its practitioners and operators at central and peripheral level, to promote health education activities aimed at increasing the level of sanitation of the population and promote the activities of continuing education programmes.. In summary SItI is dedicated to letting the professional voice of public health be heard. This role of advocacy is performed at national, regional, and local level.

Launch of the Lancet Series on the Commercial Determinants of Health

Commercial actors play a vital role in society, yet their products and practices are responsible for escalating levels of avoidable ill health and social and health inequity; problems increasingly referred to as the ‘commercial determinants of health’. As health harms increase, commercial sector wealth and power increases, while the ‘countervailing forces’ having to meet these costs - governments, intergovernmental organisations and civil society organisations - become correspondingly impoverished and disempowered, or captured by commercial interests. This Initiatives will be the platform to launch the 2023 Lancet Series on the Commercial Determinants of Health – exploring the challenges and opportunities for public policy and population health.

Chairs & Speakers:
- Dr Sandro Demaio, CEO VicHealth, Australia
- Prof Anna Gilmore, Lead Author and Professor of Public Health, Director of the Tobacco Control Research Group, University of Bath, UK

The Casebook on Advocacy in Public Health

Advocacy is a neglected aspect of population health in many countries. Improving advocacy capacity can have positive effects on population health, such as stimulating health policy development and prioritizing public health efforts. The Casebook on Advocacy in Public Health collects 18 cases of advocacy in public health from different parts of the world and covers a range of public health topics. It emphasizes the importance of advocacy as an essential function of public health and raises key issues such as gender equity, discrimination, and investment in well-being and health equity. The Casebook aims to increase knowledge and capacity to develop and implement advocacy strategies to improve population health at different levels and to inspire the development of training materials to support advocacy efforts. During the WFPHA initiative, Dr. Michael Moore, one of the editors of the Casebook, will provide some tips on how to do advocacy effectively and present the Casebook. Free printed copies of the Casebook will be distributed during the session.

Chair:
- Michael Moore, WFPHA former president & editor of the Casebook on Advocacy in Public Health
WFPHA maternal and child oral health initiative launch event: oral health is an integral part of maternal and child health

They will also acquire an understanding of the primary obstacles that prevent pregnant women, mothers, and young children from accessing and using oral healthcare services, and learn effective ways to overcome these hurdles to achieve equal access to oral healthcare. Additionally, the session will cover the current drive towards promoting oral health equity, particularly for maternal and child populations, and provide an opportunity to participate in the global launch of the maternal oral health initiative, which is endorsed by international public health and oral health organizations.

Casebook Presentation: Big Tobacco’s Dirty Tricks

Tobacco companies have used deceptive tactics to undermine tobacco control measures for decades. The World Federation of Public Health Associations created a casebook outlining seven key tactics used by the industry to promote their products and influence public opinion. The casebook provides recommendations on how to recognize these tactics and take steps against them. The casebook was distributed through various channels and a survey was conducted to evaluate its impact. The survey showed that the casebook improved understanding of tobacco industry tactics and respondents were likely to recommend it to colleagues. A panel of speakers will be presenting summaries of each tactic, discussing survey responses and opening up for discussion.

WFPHA PH Leadership Coalition Thought Experiment

Thought experiments are mental exercises in which human imagination is used to put a hypothesis or idea to the test without actually conducting an experiment or research project. From February to November 2022, WFPHA Public Health Leadership Coalition members sought to answer the following question: “If we had the power to add just one resource to what was available the day COVID-19 was declared a pandemic, so that we could change its course for the better, which resource would we choose?” This Initiative will continue and complement the discussion started during the previous workshop, to discuss the feasibility of a new planetary governance system able to tackle pandemics and other existential threats, the optimal role of the public health community to open spaces for discussions, reflections and initiatives related to the emergence of a new species-wide, representative, accountable and empowered governance system, and the contributions of thought experiments as tools for public health leaders to confront difficult questions, mostly in relation to complex ethical issues or policy decisions.

Personalized Medicine Roadmap: building bridges from Europe to China to implement effective interventions

Personalized Medicine (PM) represents a comprehensive approach that tailors disease prevention, diagnosis, and treatment to individuals, by taking advantage of the new biomedical and digital technologies, and revolutionizing healthcare and public health.

Recognizing this potential and supporting the best approaches to improve health systems, the European Commission has notably elevated PM to the top of its research agenda by supporting projects across the value chain, from research to service delivery. PM in China is attracting massive interest, with the government capitalizing on its expertise in biotechnology, computing hardware and producing infrastructures for supporting bioinformatics projects. The IC2PerMed consortium has developed a roadmap and identified facilitators and barriers for cooperation between Europe and China, creating common ground for a wider implementation of Personalized Medicine. During the Initiative, international experts will present a validated roadmap for personalized medicine and discuss the best approaches to facilitate international collaboration and sharing of best practices paving the way for realizing Personalized Medicine’s full potential and enabling populations to access personalized, smart and inclusive healthcare solutions in the near future.

WFPHA views on the Zero draft for a pandemic treaty

The International Negotiating Body (INB) of the WHO is set to convene in order to run negotiations over the zero draft of a pandemic accord. The initial global devastation wrought by COVID-19 spurred the call for its development to prevent and mitigate future pandemics, a task for which many had deemed the existent International Health Regulations (IHR) insufficient. Yet as negotiations for the pandemic accord initiate in earnest, we must push for an instrument that bolsters the IHR and addresses its deficits – namely, by creating a legally binding document that centers transparency and accountability and fosters health equity, particularly by strengthening health systems. Only then can we achieve a meaningful agreement that will safeguard our world against the most ruinous effects another pandemic would entail.
